

Turner Private Networks, a division of CNN, worked with the Futimis team to turn our vision for a new studio set into reality. We needed something that was flexible in its use, fresh in design and affordable in its price and Futimis satisfied all of our needs. The scope of the project included:

Design, Supply + Install: Aluminum Framed Graphic Light Box with Decorative Resin Light Box Covers.

Design, Supply + Install: Aluminum Framed Wood Stage with Maple finish

Design Supply + Install: Aluminum Curved Floating Framed Stage Backdrop

Throughout the design and installation process Maggie Archer worked with us to ensure the project was proceeding according to our unique needs and concerns, adapting to new requests and troubleshooting any problems that popped up. We felt as if the entire Futimis team was dedicated not just to the completion of the job, but to our complete satisfaction, and because of this, we are thrilled with our one-of-a kind new set. Indeed, because it turned out to be so striking, other divisions within the company have asked to use the set as well. We thank Maggie Archer and the entire Futimis team for a job well done.

Alison Hashimoto
Managing Editor
Turner Private Networks